

The Egyptian Afterlife

The body was covered in natron salt for about 40 days.

The intestines, lungs, liver and stomach were embalmed and placed in canopic jars.

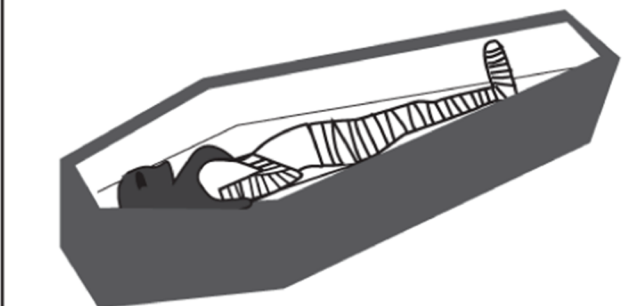

The internal organs were removed.

The body was washed with water from the Nile River.

The mummy was placed in its coffin.

The body was wrapped in linen with jewels and charms.

